Angie counsels clients through all stages of their business — from formation to exit and everything in between. She regularly represents public and private corporations in matters of corporate governance, mergers and acquisitions, and drafts and negotiates commercial contracts. Angie supports clients in achieving their goals by guiding them through due diligence reviews of potential targets, negotiating terms of sale, and managing transactions through closing and post-closing transitions. She also acts as outside general counsel to emerging growth companies by assisting with day-to-day contracts, strategic alliances and business planning, and other legal issues these companies face in their business operations.
