Kimberly M. Parson represents clients in complex commercial litigation, focusing on insurance coverage, general commercial litigation, personal injury liability, products liability, environmental liability, and mass torts; as well as in New Jersey's Municipal Court. Ms. Parson counsels Fortune 500 companies and small businesses in actions filed in several jurisdictions and in a variety of insurance coverage contexts, including actions involving coverage for products liability claims, environmental contamination claims, construction defect claims, and mass tort liability claims.

Ms. Parson also assists in providing coverage opinions and advice to insurance carriers concerning their coverage obligations under various types of insurance policies including, comprehensive general liability, group property and casualty lines, public entity insurance, specialty and professional risk, excess, contractors, automobile liability, and workers' compensation and/or employer's liability coverage.

In addition, Ms. Parson has experience in litigating first party property, employment discrimination, and medical malpractice claims. She also handles matters in the Municipal Courts of New Jersey.
